LIVERY STABLE.

(Wood street, between Diamond alley & Fifth-st)

George Steward,

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of this city and its vicinity, that he has opened a Livery Stable, where he intends to carry it on in a manner calculated to do justice to himself and accommodate all others who may please to give him a call, having altered his stable expressly for the purpose, which is inferior to none in the place. He also intends to keep good riding horses to hire—calculated for journeys of any length. Having procured careful managers to superintend the business, he will be enabled to give general satisfaction.

Good saddles and bridles in every case shall be furnished, necessary for the comfort of the rider—when thus caparisoned it is presumed that justice will be done to horses, so justly their due.

Terms of hire and other affairs relative to the establishment, made known at the time of hiring.

He has also laid in an excellent quantity of oats and hay, and feed of every description.

Gentlemen committing horses to his care, may rest assured of unremitting attention in every particular

LEE'S Famous Antibilious Pills.

These much esteemed Pills have been for many years prepared in Baltimore by the present proprietor, as many of our most respectable citizens can testify ; and a number of them have readily and gladly given certificates of their great value as a family Physic.

Lee's Antibilious Pills are, and have been for many years sold and used as a family medicine in all parts of the United States, and have always given general satisfaction; and their superior benefits are so highly esteemed by a wise and discerning public, that they require no newspaper eulogy or puffs to recommend them.

The proprietor most respectfully informs his friends and the public in general that he continues carefully to prepare (from the original receipts) Lee's Antibilious Pills, together with the whole of Lee's Family Medicines, at his family Medicine Dispensary, No. 68, Hanover street, Baltimore —viz.

Lee's Antibilious Pills,

For the prevention and cure of Malignant, Bilious, and other Fevers, admirably adapted to carry off superfluous bile, etc.

Lee's Worm Destroying LOZENGES.

A certain and powerful remedy for destroying all kinds of worms.

Lee's Elixir,

A certain and effectual remedy for obstinate colds, coughs, weak stomachs, etc.

LEE'S GREAT RESTORATIVE AND Nervous Cordial,

A most valuable medicine for great and general debility, nervous disorders, loss of appetite, etc. etc.

Lee's Essence and Extract of MUSTARD

An infallible remedy for sprains, bruises, rheumatism, numbness, chilblains, etc.

Lee's Sovereign Ointment for the ITCH.

Warranted to cure by only one application.

Lee's Ague and Fever
DROPS.

Warranted to cure if taken according to the directions.

LEE'S PERSIAN LOTION,

For removing eruptions from the face, and curing tetters, etc.

Lee's Indian Vegetable Specific,

A certain and effectual cure for the venereal and gonorrheas.

LEE'S TOOTH ACHE DROPS,

Which give immediate relief.

LEE'S TOOTH POWDER.

Which cleanses and beautifies the teeth.

LEE'S EYE WATER.

Cure for the sore eyes.

LEE'S ANODYNE ELIXIR,

For the cure of the head-ache.

The proprietor would be glad to insert the many certificates and letters recommending the above truly valuable medicines, but this in a newspaper, is impracticable—He therefore with increased confidence respectfully proffers them to a liberal and discerning public,

DRUGGISTS & MERCHANTS are informed that Lee's Antibilious Pills, together with a general assortment of Lee's highly approved family Medicines, can be purchased at the proprietor's Dispensary on the most favorable terms. They are very respectfully invited to call and convince themselves of the fact.

They may be had on commission (where no Agency now exists) by giving approved reference. They are sold by his appointment, wholesale and retail, by Samuel Pettigrew.

Friday, March 13, 1818.

From the Chester and Delaware Federalist.

DESULTORY THINKER.

A simple Quaker—or a Quakers' wife
Out do Llanlaff, in doctrine or in life.
POPE.

It had been a fine day. The melancholy hues of Autumn were fading into the indistinctness of the twilight and the western horizon was lighted up with those purple glories that Virgil loved to describe.—The smoke rose so gracefully and tranquilly from my neighbour Thornton's roof, and bespoke such warmth and cheerfulness within, that I could not resist the invitation it seemed thus to hold out to share in the pleasures of his fire side. A brisk crackling fire at this season of the year has peculiar comforts. It dispels the unwholesomenes of these damp evening fogs. It collects in a circle the long scattered members of the family, and while it recals to memory the pleasures of the past winter, seems to throw its sprightly flickering lustre upon those which are to come.

I was received with a hearty welcome by the little group, which consisted of my neighbour, his wife and two daughters, and a matronly lady who was on a visit to the family.

My friend Thornton is a member of that estimable society to which Pennsylvania is so deeply indebted. Educated in the principles of Quakerism, his understanding and his heart seem alike enlisted in its cause. He cultivates with but little assiduity the farm on which he resides, and as his wants are not numerous he has had leisure to improve his mind by extensive reading. Frank even to bluntness in his manner, sincere and warm in his feelings, he is, from the independence of his opinions and the originality and clearness of his ideas—a most instructive and entertaining companion. Yet his quaker strictness of judging and his retired habits have given him a peculiarity which will easily be recognised by those who know much of the quaker character. I shall take another occasion of introducing his family to my readers. The lady whom I shall call Selima was a stranger to me, but there was a courtliness in her manners and a piercing loveliness in her eye that attracted and rivetted my attention.

The ladies joined in the conversation which took that turn of serious good sense that I have observed to prevail among the Friends. I became deeply interested as it proceeded and had at length been for some time absorbed in thought when I perceived that silence reigned in our circle.—The fire had burned down and its glimmering uncertain light seemed to harmonize with the seriousness of our feelings, I felt somewhat embarrassed at first but this feeling was soon lost in those of surprise and interest, for the silence was interrupted by Selima in the following words.

"I have been musing, my dear friends, upon the exclamation of David "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." It had been a season no doubt of deep and severe trial—of many difficulties; his enemies encompassed him about yet he remembered that the Lord was his shepherd and in that holy confidence did he renew his strength. He poured forth his soul in supplication—he leaned upon the everlasting arm and it supported him through all his dangers. There are many seasons in which we must all feel the need of an Almighty shepherd—seasons of affliction, of disappointment, of sickness and pain. They are meant for our probation and improvement and deeply should we prize them. Whom the Lord loveth—he chasteneth—and confident may we be if we keep fast hold of our faith that we shall never be forsaken.

But if there are seasons of deep tribulation through which the Christian must pass—there are also seasons of tranquility and refreshment; when the great Shepherd is pleased to lead us by the still waters and into the green pastures. Oh! how animating how consoling are these seasons! and if, in the bosom of our friends and our families we are permitted to feel that they also are the sheep of his fold—how greatly are the ties of blood and friendship strengthened! Partakers of the same communion—fellow-heirs of the same immortal hopes—we can take courage from each other's example and go on our way rejoicing.

Come then—my brother—my sister—bow down your necks to that burden which is light—labour not for the perishable glories of this world—but let us seek to gather the crown of immortality, and inheritance which passeth not away."

A deep and solemn silence ensued—which my friend Thornton broke by some common place remark. The ladies retired and I presently took my leave more than ever attached to my worthy neighbours, and lost in contemplation upon the things which belong to eternity

PATTERSON. (N. J.) Feb. 12.

A rare instance of affection and benevolence, from a daughter to an aged parent found in distress, and of whom, from a lapse of time and her extreme youth, at the period of separation, she retained little or no recollection.

Some two or three weeks since, a lady of respectable appearance, called at the house of the writer of the following narrative, and was very inquisitive about a certain Mr. ———, who she had heard resided somewhere in this quarter.—From her description, the writer concluded he knew the person; and informed, that if he proved to be the same, he was very poor, and that he (the writer) believed a town charge. She inquired particularly whether his poverty proceeded from improper conduct, or from misfortunes incidental to human nature.—Until she should ascertain this fact, it seemed, she did not feel disposed to acknowledge any relationship; the writer being but partially acquainted with the circumstances of the old gentleman, referred her to a neighbouring lady, who had resided several years in the same neighbourhood with him, at a few miles distant from the town, from whom he presumes she obtained the necessary information, and after travelling 400 miles on her way to the city of New-York, (where she was informed he had taken his residence for the present winter) she found him a small distance from the landing, next below this place, after an absence of upwards of thirty years.

Further particulars of this little history as related to the writer hereof.

Some time during the revolutionary war, the said Mr. ———, sailed out of the port of Salem, (Mass.) on a privateering voyage whether as an officer or as a private seaman is not known; he has however by some means obtained the title of Captain, by which he still goes. He left behind a wife and three small daughters; in what circumstances has not been ascertained; his wife however died during his absence, and the children became dispersed. After some time he returned from sea, came to New-Jersey, got married and resided many years in the neighbourhood above mentioned, he there lost his second wife, and from what causes the narrator has not been correctly informed, became very indigent and finally a town charge.

In this situation, with a beard of four or five months growth, and in tattered garments, she (who proved to be his own daughter) found him. The scene no doubt was pathetick and affecting. Like the good Samaritan she poured oil and wine into his wounds. She left him pecuniary assistance to relieve his necessities if any should occur, until her return from the city, which was in a few days, when she expended to the amount of fifty dollars to clothe him in a suitable manner, she also procured him comfortable board, and in addition she left with a respectable gentleman, money sufficient to discharge said board, and support him handsomely until spring, when she will either come or be heard from again. It appears that the lady in question, had the good fortune to marry a wealthy man, that dying his state became hers, and angel like, she in distributing it to the most laudible of purposes, in travelling in search of finding and succouring a long lost and distressed parent. May the parent of all good reward her, and so dispense his blessings towards her, as she shall continue to dispense her acts of philanthrophy & benevolence towards her necessitous fellow creatures.

ANNAPOLIS, (Md.) Feb. 19.

The general government has acknowledged the justice of the claim of this state against the United States, for monies expended by her during the late war, and has agreed to pay the same. The claim amount to 295,000 dollars.

Montreal, Feb. 18, 1818.

The northern division of the army of the United States, during the last year, performed 133,654 days work on fortifications, buildings and public roads. Thus it appears that our neighbors are making inroads which will lead into the heart of the Canadas, and building forts almost at our door, for instance that at Rouse's point. A question naturally rises here, Are these preparations making for their own defence? surely not; but to annoy us on some future occasion.

The reduction of the naval force on the lakes to almost a mere nothing, by the mutual consent of both governments in order to avoid collision and expences, made us believe that similar measures would have been adopted on land; and surely nothing more than this could have contributed to preserve that harmony and good understanding which happily exists between us and the United States.

NEW-YORK, Feb. 22.

LATE FROM ENGLAND.

The packet-line ship Courier, captain, Browne, arrived at this port on Saturday, sailed from Liverpool on the 5th of January and the editors of the Gazette are enabled to lay before their readers the contents of papers, &c. to the time of her departure.

The Russian Squadron still remained at Spithead, consisting of five 74's and three 84's some of them wanting repairs. They were to sail for Cadiz about the middle of January, to be there delivered over to the Spanish government, and their crews to return in Russian transports.

The channel of Dieppe, which had been obstructed by sand banks, has been cleared by recent storms.

The London Courier of the 26th Dec. says, "Government will no longer give encouragement to persons who wish to proceed as settlers to his majesty's dominions in North America, except to half-pay officers, or persons under peculiar circumstances; as many who went there the last two years, were unable to cultivate the land allotted to them, and are now in very great distress."

The editor of the Liverpool Mercury, of 2d ult. observes, "Dr. Franklin himself, with all his sanguine predictions of America becoming a great and independent power, could scarcely have anticipated, that an American ship of the line, bearing his own name, would convey the American minister to England, in the year 1817."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman high in office at New-Orleans, to a gentleman in the city of Baltimore, dated January 28.

"We have nothing new here, except that we shall have a cruel and sanguinary war with the Seminole and Creek Indians. inhabiting the promontary of East Florida. They are 4000 warriors strong; have destroyed all their towns, placed their women, children, stock and provisions in a fortified camp, situated in the midst of an immense and almost an impassible marsh. They have had some success in late skirmishes, in cutting off our foraging parties: they are very sanguine of success, & determined not to yield. Our army is in an alarming situation for want of provisions, which it is extremely difficult to convey to them. The Indians have command of the water courses, and obstruct the passage of transport by shooting the men off the decks, without any exposure on their part from the banks being high and covered with brush. The naval force can be of no service; the soldiers must therefore see it out. We are well, though the weather has been dreadful for a month past; extremely cold; ice two inches thick, and snow on the ground four days. It has been colder this winter than was ever known here before."

FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1818.

"SITUATION OF PITTSBURGH."

Under the above title we observe, in the Western Herald, two letters, written, as it might seem, from this place; one directed to the Aurora, and the other to some one that is called "a merchant in Steubenville." Strange as the description which they give of our city may appear to people at a distance, we can assure them, that the folks here are likely to be as much surprised at it as any others. Now, lest the readers of the aforesaid letters, should fail to give the authors of them all the credit which is due to their wit and invention, we shall add a few notes, which Messrs. Duane and Wilson out of their kindly care for our commerce may publish by way of appendix.

Those who believe the talk about calicoes costing "half a dollar a yard at Manchester," and "long lawns a dollar a yard at Glasgow," or even half that price, may easily believe that they were sold here for "fifteen cents per yard," or for five cents, had the writer by accident said so; and yet still have been staggered at hearing about pencils selling for six cents per dozen which had cost eight shillings and six pence sterling per dozen in London."

As to the "poor Frenchman" whose goods were seized and sold for rent though the description makes it utterly impossible for us to mistake the person, yet, lest some people should misunderstand the case, it may be well to add a word to the story. By the way, the information which the writer affords us about the goods having been sold for rent, is quite as new to the "poor Frenchmans' landlord as to any body else. With regard to ourselves and some of our acquaintances who attended the said sales, and were surprised at the high prices generally obtained—with the additional special knowledge in some cases that more was bid than had previously been asked by the "poor Frenchman" for the same articles by retail—truly we were "astonished" not a few, to learn that they were "sold for less than the raw material of which they were made cost in France," considering that the goods consisted partly of engravings, but chiefly of men, horses, and other cattle made of wood.

After this specimen we think it unnecessary to say any thing about the rest of the letter, or even to enquire after the glass maker whose works are likely to stop on "account of the enormous number of apprentices they take"—or the iron founders, who, it seems, starve their workmen by paying them their wages in flour and pork, which happen to be very marketable articles at present. It is not at all surprising to see this writer conclude his letter by observing that "this is a small but too faithful sketch" &c. and we should be happy to relieve him from any qualms of conscience he may feel on account of the over fidelity of his statements. It is suspected that the writer who signs himself "A Domestic Artist," is neither a domestic, nor an artist, nor even an artisan (which he probably meant) but one of that class of dealers who, notwithstanding the alarming sales, aforesaid, find it convenient to purchase goods at auction in Philadelphia, and sell them here in the same way,

The second letter affirms the United States' Bank to be the "cause of our present evils," and, what is more odd, it is stated to be "from a merchant in Pittsburgh." Most assuredly the writer is any thing else than a Pittsburgh merchant, for he advises his Ohio correspondent to go to Philadelphia or Baltimore, and not to come here for goods, (our seven days auction rules and sacrificing prices to the contrary notwithstanding) and further tells him that there is but one broker here; though every resident of Pittsburgh, capable of reading a sign, knows that there are—and that at the date of the letter (Feb. 17th) there were, two Lotteries and Exchange offices in the place.

The editor of the Western Herald offers some confirmation of what is there stated, and most humanely advises us not "tamely to look on and see our town, which once flourished in so eminent a degree, loose its trade and reputation, and become the prey of sharpers and shavers." Truly Mr. Wilson we are of your opinion; and as we have not lately observed any sharpers or shavers more apparently hostile than the writers of these two letters, we should be glad to expose them first.

By a report of the Commissioners of the Navy, it appears, that contracts have been entered into for building seven ships of the line and three frigates.

HARRISBURGH.

A supplement to the Militia law has been passed by the Senate and is now before the House of Representatives, which perhaps is a bill of the greatest magnitude of any one that has been before the Legislature this session, if passed it will save a great expense to the Treasury for three years under the present Militia law, viz. For 1814—15 1815—16 and 1816—17 was $ 3648,48 or $ 1216,16 per annum.

The expenditures for the same year under the present Militia law amounted to $94,945, 12 or $ 31,648,37 1-2 per annum.

Take the receipts from the expenditures, and it will be found that there has been expended for common Militia purposes in the last three years $ 91,296,64 from other than the Militia fund equal to $ 30,432 21 a year.

The old system of 1807 had a clear profit to the Treasury of $ 3,648 48 in three years equal to $ 1,216 16.

The bill passed by Senate and now before the House of Representatives is upon a more economical system.

Cobbett's Claim.—In our last we stated that in consequence of the failure of this gentleman's claim in the senate, he had addressed a memorial to the house of Representatives. The spirit and language of this were conceived by some to be highly indecorous and offensive; and on the 20th inst. Mr. Kelly offered a preamble and resolution censuring the tenor of the petition, and directing it to be dismissed. The following is the form in which the preamble and resolution were adopted by the house on the 24th inst.

Whereas a just sense of propriety, and a due regard to the dignity of this house, ought never to permit an application to be sustained or acted upon, which is of a nature opprobrious or indecorous, lest that medium of communication should be converted into a vehicle of indecency.

And whereas the petition of Wm. Cobbett, presented on yesterday to this house contains language and sentiments highly indecorous and grossly libellous:—Therefore,

Resolved, That the petition of William Cobbett be dismissed.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER.

Washington. February 25.

Matters between Spain and this country thicken rapidly. Mr. Forsyth, who is understood to be generally in the confidence of the executive, yesterday moved an address to the president, requesting him to lay before the House so much of the correspondence with that government as will enable congress to judge what ground there is for expecting the adjustment of the differences between that government and this country. He remarked that the house would find from those documents that every effort of our minister at Madrid to bring about a settlement had been evaded. He reminded the house that the president informed them that a negociation was going on in Washington, and said that the result of that negociation, or the state it was in, ought to be imparted to the house.—For himself, he could say that he was tired of negociating with Spain; and he wished to know whether there was any prospect of its being brought to a favourable issue.

Alex. Gaz.

Among all the inventions and novelties with which the present age abounds, we do not remember to have read of any thing equal to a curiosity now in the possession of a gentleman of this town. We allude to a first rate line of battle-ship, in minature, so perfect in all its parts as to bear the most minute scrutiny. Its length is 6 feet, from the figure head to the extreme end of the traffil; its mean breadth 18 inches, and its height from the keel to the royal mast head, 7 feet 2 inches. It is copper bottomed, with sails, rigging and spars complete, and carries 136 guns—the quarter deck and stern galleries are elegantly carved and decorated, and contains 234 squares of glass—metal guns of suitable calibre, have also been cast, and the usual boats cut of solid wood and equipped. In fact, nothing whatever has been omitted in the construction, which can be found belonging to an actual man of war. The ingenious contriver of this piece of mechanism is a native of England, who arrived in this country some weeks since. He has been employed at it occasionally for the last five years, during which time he was never on board a ship one hour. But what forms the extraordinary novelty in this instance is the fact of the whole design having been executed by the use of no other tools than those employed by shoemakers in the prosecution of their business—if we except one small chisel. The builder served his time regularly to the shoemaking business, never saw a vessel of any kind on the stocks, and still remains ignorant of the first rules of ship building. The rigging is all manufactured by himself from shoethread, without the assistance of any person or implement whatever.—The whole is mounted on a carriage with wheels by which it can be drawn in safety.

We understand it is the proprietor's design to proceed with it to Washington, in the hope that a portion of that liberal encouragement for which its citizens have ever been distinguished, will be extended towards him, and that he may dispose of it at a price nearly if not equal in value to the time and labor which he bestowed on it.

Royal Economy.—The Russian Prince Nicholas is said to have ordered from London one of "Slater's Patent Cooking Apparatus," with which a dinner for 200 persons can be cooked with less than 22 cents worth of fuel. It is to be placed in the kitchen of his new palace in Russia. He has also ordered another for the palace of the Prince Constantine, at Warsaw.

A London paper of Jan. 1, sates, that the exploring expedition to the north Pole, is to sail from England in March. Intelligence has been received, that the ice, to the extent of 50,000 square miles, has broken up, and cleared away, in the neighbourhood of the north Pole.

COMMUNICATED.

ROB ROY.—The following extract of a letter from London, shews the estimation in which this work is held in England.

"The publishers here gave 3000 Guineas for it, and never did the announcement of of any work excite so much interest in this country as Rob Roy—indeed nearly ten thousand copies are ordered of the publishers."

This book is just issued in this country manuscript copies having been procured from London at great expense before its publication there

The Antiquary, Waverly, Guy Mannering and Tales of my Landlord, have all been read with interest in the Western country. These admirers will in a few days be gratified with Rob Roy, as Booksellers of this city will be supplied with a large share of the edition.
